1. An examiner's amendment to the record appears below. Should the changes and/or additions be unacceptable to applicant, an amendment may be filed as provided by 37 CFR 1.312. To ensure consideration of such an amendment, it MUST be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee.

Authorization for this examiner's amendment was given in a telephone interview with Henry Young on 13 September 2005.

The application has been amended as follows:

Claim 2 has been cancelled.

In each of claims 3-8 and 10-17, the claim dependency has been changed from "claim 2" to --claim 1--.

In claim 4, a period has been inserted at the end of the claim.

In claim 20, line 1, "The expandable curing bladder of claim 2 having" has been changed to --The curing press of claim 5, wherein said expandable curing bladder has--.

2. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance: The prior art of record does not teach or fairly suggest an expandable curing bladder composed of a rubber composition comprised of an isobutylene copolymer rubber selected from butyl rubber and/or halobutyl rubber, and about 0.5 to about 40 phr of a dispersion contained therein of micro-capsules comprised of a micro-encapsulated lubricant micro-encapsulated within a thin walled shell of an organic polymer, as claimed in claim 1.

While curing bladders composed of a rubber composition and a polysiloxane lubricant dispersed therein are known (see Tomita et al., U.S. Patent 4,814,214), the prior art of record does not teach or fairly suggest a curing bladder including lubricant as micro-capsules comprised of a micro-encapsulated lubricant micro-encapsulated within a thin walled shell of an organic polymer. Moreover, while it is known to provide a dispersion of microcapsules containing a lubricant in a compounded rubber for a bearing member (see Japan 61-254633), the prior art of record does not teach or fairly suggest providing a dispersion of microcapsules containing a lubricant in a curing bladder which comprises an isobutylene copolymer rubber.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."

3. Any inquiry concerning this communication or earlier communications from the examiner should be directed to James Mackey whose telephone number is 571-272-1135. The examiner can normally be reached on M-F, 8:30-5:00.

If attempts to reach the examiner by telephone are unsuccessful, the examiner's supervisor, Duane Smith can be reached on 571-272-1166. The fax phone number for the organization where this application or proceeding is assigned is 571-273-8300.
